

IRISH AVIATION STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION

BRIDGING THE GAP BETWEEN STUDENTS AND THE AVIATION INDUSTRY

WELCOME MESSAGE

Dear Reader,

On behalf of IASA, I welcome you to our industry booklet.

IASA's development over the last four years is a testament to all those involved with the Committee, especially the students on the Committee who dedicate their time and effort to the Association on a voluntary basis. That being said, we could never complete the work we do, to the standard which it is executed, without the support of the industry. We encourage organisations from all backgrounds with a connection to the industry to get involved and show that you encourage young talent and support the next generation of aviation professionals in their development. We take pride in organising events to help other students learn about potential career paths and provide networking opportunities with industry leaders.

The support of the industry allows us to continue our current initiatives such as our annual Career Expo, student information booklets, Career Slingshots and Junior Aviation Networking (JAN) events, as well as help support new, exciting ideas that we are currently generating. I would like to thank all of those who are already involved with the Association and to encourage newly interested institutions to get involved with this growing and exciting enterprise.

Best Regards,

Gareth Lau
Chairperson

"Since its foundation in 2015, IASA has become integral to the aviation industry in Ireland. IASA's level of commitment and professionalism has been demonstrated time and time again through their various events, such as the annual IASA symposium, the IASA Student Handbook, job platform and in their many dealings with industry professionals.

In line with their vision of bridging the gap between students and the aviation industry, the IASA team has worked tirelessly to forge relationships and build invaluable connections. These connections are crucial both in terms of guiding and mentoring the next generation of industry professionals but also provide companies with direct access to an immense pool of talent.

In short, IASA is a key player in ensuring the prosperous future of the aviation industry in Ireland".

"The IASA events provides fantastic opportunities for Arup to meet the students who will be the future of Irish Aviation. IASA events offer the students networking and learning opportunities with some of the most experienced people in the industry. It is extremely refreshing to see so many motivated individuals who are passionate about the work we do and interested in availing of the opportunities that Arup have to offer. A massive well done to the Students Organising Committee for continuing to put on fantastic events throughout the year.

The IASA Symposium was an interesting and holistic insight into the entire aviation industry, from leasing to airports themselves. IASA provide a great opportunity for students to learn about the aviation industry and to get first hand advice from experts in the industry about what they would be looking for in budding graduates. For students, getting involved with IASA is valuable experience which will aid in furthering their careers."
